

OBJECTIVE

McDonald's South America aims to create a comprehensive sales performance report for 2022. The goal is to understand sales trends, profit behavior, customer volume, and brand satisfaction across different countries. These insights will help the company strengthen operations and accelerate growth in 2023 and beyond.

Sample Questions

1. Compare sales trends for 2021 and 2022 using a single chart.
 2. Which months recorded the highest and lowest sales?
 3. What is the profit level in 2022, and how does it relate to customer volume?
 4. Which countries contributed the most to total sales?
 5. How satisfied are customers with service, speed, hygiene, availability, and quality?
 6. Is there a relationship between country performance and customer satisfaction?
 7. How are sales, profit, and number of customers connected?
 8. Which country shows the most potential for strategic investment?
-

Results of Analysis

From the dashboard:

- Total sales reached $2,544 million, with profit at $890 million.
 - The company served 87 million customers in 2022.
 - On the trend chart, 2022 sales consistently performed above 2021, especially from August to December.
 - Brazil (953.3) leads in total sales among South American countries, followed by Argentina (553.2) and others.
 - Customer satisfaction is highest in Hygiene (93%), Availability (95%), and Quality (86%), indicating strong operational performance.
 - Lower scores appear in Speed (54%) and Service (53%), suggesting opportunities for improvement.
-

Final Conclusion to Improve Sales

McDonald's South America should reinforce its operations in high-performing countries like Brazil and Argentina, while addressing service and speed bottlenecks that may limit customer satisfaction.

Investing in faster delivery systems, improved staffing, and queue management can enhance the customer experience.

Given rising sales toward the end of 2022, McDonald's should amplify promotions and campaigns during peak months to boost customer engagement across all countries in 2023.